

RIDE THE WORLD FAMOUS SKUNK TRAIN

A Historic Railroad in the Redwoods

Located in Northern California's Mendocino County there is a skunk running through the redwood forest, but this isn't just any skunk – it's the world famous Skunk Train. The California redwoods, pristine coastline, and award-winning vineyards are all a part of the landscape that makes Mendocino County such an amazing place and home to this 138-year-old train.

So Much to Do

While visiting take advantage of other local attractions, such as the Mendocino Coast Botanical Gardens and California Coastal Trail in Fort Bragg, Seabiscuits home ranch in Willits, and amazing wineries throughout the region.

Departing from Willits and traveling to Crowley, your train will climb the Eastern slope of the Coastal Mountain Range and cut through it at Tunnel #2 (the Summit) before beginning its descent into the redwood thick Noyo River Canyon and stopping at the Wolf Tree, where you will have a chance to disembark and explore the surroundings.

Departing from the Mendocino Coast your train will travel along the Pudding Creek Estuary to The Glen on this short and scenic 75-minute, 7-mile roundtrip. You will be traveling over some of the first tracks laid down by the California Western Railroad in 1885.

Smells Like a Skunk?

Well not really, but the nickname Skunk originated in 1925 when motorcars were introduced (which today are sometimes referred to as rail buses or rail cruisers). These single unit self-propelled motorcars had gasoline powered engines for power and pot-bellied stoves (burning crude oil to keep the passengers warm). The combination of the fumes created a very pungent odor, and the old timers living along the line said these motorcars were like skunks, "You could smell them before you could see them."
